
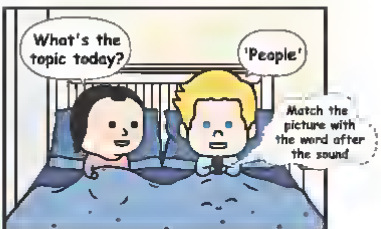
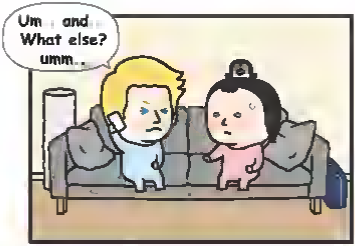
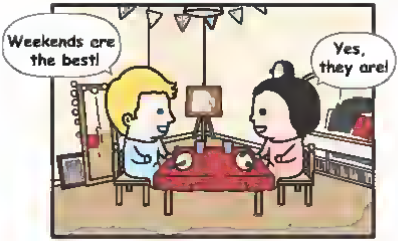
But when it's not a special day
like this day, ...



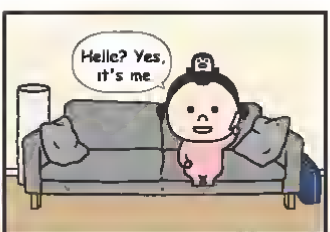
After we wake up,
we still lie in bed and spend time
to play games or study Korean.



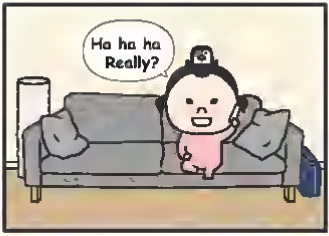
...Of all the words,
why those words?



It's the nicest thing to do to reduce our tiredness and have a relaxing lazy weekend.



Also there is one more thing that I never miss. That is calling my family in Korea.



Although we don't talk about big news, having a conversation with them is a big energy source for me to charge up for the following week.

And then we enjoy a big late breakfast.

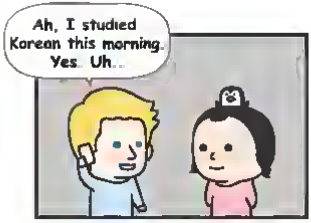
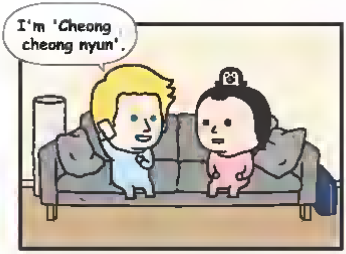
... there is nothing much to say so...

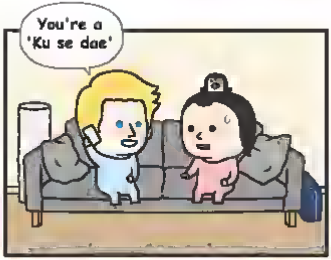
... Mev runs out of things to say very fast.

That day, I remembered that Mev had studied Korean in the morning so I gave him this advice.





*Cheong nyun. Young man.



*Ku se dae: old generation.

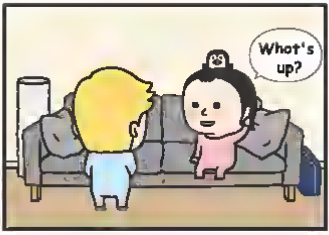
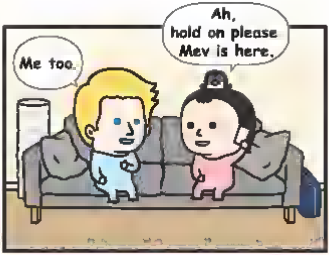
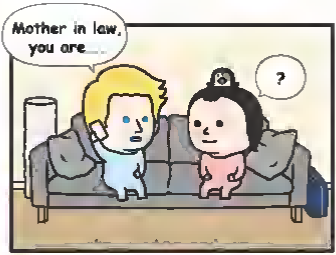
Then he always asks for some help with an urgent and embarrassed face.



While I talk on the phone,
Mev sometimes comes to me and ...



... he tells me that he wants
to talk to them as well.



*Ki seong se dae: The older generation.

Of all the words...

We normally wake up late
on weekend mornings.

You told me to say what I'd studied.
